

CROKER HITS HEARST

Old Tammany Chieftain Also Scores Bourke Cockran.

DANGER TO THE DEMOCRACY

In Last Interview He Will Ever Give Former Boss Writes Graphic Chapter of New York Political History. Reasons for His Hostility to the Gifted Orator Are Stated.

Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 12.—Richard Croker to-day gave an interview in which he added a chapter to his quarrel with William R. Hearst, and paid his respects to his enemies in Tammany Hall.

The old chief's talk was marked by intense earnestness. After the interview was written he personally made corrections. It is, therefore, a sort of official proclamation, the last, Croker declares, that he will make.

In reply to the question as to what had caused Hearst's defeat in the recent election, Mr. Croker replied simply: "God Almighty."

Then he added: "His defeat is a judgment of heaven, owing to his scurrilous charges and his ungentlemanly conduct of the campaign, vilifying every one who did not hold his opinion. In all my experience I do not remember a campaign which sunk to such baseness."

"I see Hearst referred to me as a corrupt politician. If he thinks so, why did he visit me in 1903 at Wantage and beg me to resume the leadership of Tammany Hall. Mr. Hearst implored me to re-enter politics, saying that Lewis Nixon was incompetent and that everybody wanted me to return. Hearst also confessed that he was ambitious to enter politics, and said I could help him. Now, Hearst is putting me in the position of being in the 'plunder' with Belmont, Morgan, Carnegie, Root, Roosevelt, Ryan, Freedman, and the Rev. Lindsay Parker. I am proud to be associated with these gentlemen, for they have done more for New York and the country than any man accomplished in a conscious state of mind."

Hearst Has Changed Heart.

"When I was in New York Hearst and I were close friends, and I always liked him. Surely Hearst did not at that time think me corrupt. I do not know why he thinks so now. Hearst has greatly changed in the last few years. Now, apparently, he is controlled by the idea that he is greater than the Democratic party. He is ambitious to make the party his servant. He is slave to passion and egotism. His creed is that everybody who is for him is an angel, while everybody who is against him is a demon. "Because I think he is still a danger to Democracy, I consider it my duty to speak. If Hearst had been elected governor and had continued raising class distinctions, cursing those who have made our country, and vilifying every one with a bank account, I am convinced he would have caused a class war, bringing sadder days than any America has ever known. "His power to do this has not disappeared. Democracy should be on guard against him. God help Democracy, if Hearstism becomes its guiding principle."

Mr. Croker was asked what he had to say about the charge made by Bourke Cockran that he was a corrupt politician and he replied:

Gave Cockran Start in Politics.

"When Cockran was a poor youth, I not only introduced him into politics, but as he had no money I induced Tammany to pay the expenses of his Congressional campaign. When he got into Congress Cockran wanted to be appointed on the Ways and Means Committee. I still had faith in him and suggested his appointment to Speaker Crisp."

"Mr. Crisp demurred, saying he feared Cockran would be sorry later, but finally Cockran was appointed. "I consider Cockran one of the most dangerous and most treacherous men in American politics. All that is necessary to learn his character is to look him straight in the face and watch the little, closely set, beady eyes roll in his head as he attempts to deceive."

"Cockran is one of the ablest speakers in America, but he never believes a word he says. This is the man who got into the 'Four Hundred' and is now preaching clean politics. God save Democracy from such reformers. "I ask the judgment of all fair-minded persons. I have nothing to regard with shame in my political career except my friendship for Bourke Cockran. I never did anything corrupt or betrayed anybody."

Out of Politics for Good.

"Regarding the future, I want to dispel the rumor that I intend to re-enter politics. Nothing could induce me to re-enter myself in Tammany and play another part in politics. I am out for good and all. I would not live five years if I returned to the political arena. Here in Ireland, with my horses, I am looking forward to the fifteen best years of my life."

"This will be all my future. Concerning Tammany's future, the men on the spot are the best judges. I have no information as to a fight between Murphy and McClellan, but I regret the misunderstanding and hope some means will be found to change Murphy's opinion of Mayor McClellan and McClellan's opinion of Murphy."

"In conclusion let me give this advice to the party, to refrain from personal vilification in future campaigns. Calumny never wins political battles. Fight on clean-cut issues and do not accuse opponents of crimes simply because they are opponents. If you cannot win by fair means, do not stoop to foul ones. Do not despair if you have not retained your manhood. That has been the lesson of my political career."

MUST EXPLAIN THEIR TRADE.

Illegal Employment Agency Proprietors Are Summoned.

Commissioner West has invited several proprietors of employment agencies charged with placing young girls in illegal resorts to confer with him at his office in the District Building. They were reported to the Commissioners by the committee on household research of the Public Educational Association. Their names have not been made public. Commissioner West said he wished to give the accused an opportunity to state their side of the case.

Meets Robbers After Six Months.

Policeman Egan, of the First precinct, ran into Henry Scott, of 217 I street southwest, and Charles Crown, of 107 Third street northwest, for whom he had been searching for months. They are charged with highway robbery. They were last night locked up in the station house. The police had been looking for them since last May. They are charged with relieving intoxicated men of their savings.

Twenty-eight Negroes Arrested.

The officers of No. 2 precinct arrested twenty-eight negroes last night for violating the order issued to prevent their unlawful assembly on Seventh street. A number of women were among them, and almost all deposited $5 collateral.

EIGHT POLICEMEN ARRESTED.

Washington Men Violate Hunting Laws in Virginia.

Just as they were about to board a train on their return to this city from a hunting expedition, eight officers of the local police force were arrested yesterday at Fredericksburg, Va. Eustace C. Blake, Dr. A. M. Ray, Hillary Smith, Rufus Smith, Eli Riley, Clarence Burrows, A. L. F. Ough, and William Easley, all of the Metropolitan police and mortal foes of the bunny cotton-tail, composed the party that met with the ignominious interruption. They had spent a week tramping the fields and woods of Stafford County serenely unconscious of the fact that they were under the surveillance of the eagle eye of Game Warden F. M. Aldrich, of Fredericksburg. They suffered the unique experience of being escorted to police headquarters and lined up in front of the bar charged with a violation of the State game laws in hunting without a license. They were arraigned on an immediate trial, and gained one through a mutual agreement by all parties concerned. It was proven that they had hunted without a license, but were dismissed by the mayor when it was deemed in the evidence that they had hunted with the full consent of the owners of the land.

The decision in this case will be far-reaching in effect, as under it it will be possible for any hunter to hunt, provided he obtains permission from the owner.

STUDENTS IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Football Players and Rooters Hurt When Car Hits Machine.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 12.—Flushed with victory on the field, three players and a rooter of the Washington and Jefferson College football team were injured as a result of an automobile accident this afternoon.

A big automobile, carrying five members of the team and six rooters, en route from Exposition Park shortly after the game, was struck by an electric car at Fifth avenue and Wood street. The occupants were thrown out.

The injured quarter back of the Washington and Jefferson eleven; bruised about the head and shoulders; right leg badly wrenched.

William Seaman, left guard, bruised about the hips and head.

Harry Newman, right tackle, bruised about body; hurt internally.

William McKeechnie, third baseman of the Washington, Pa., baseball team, injured about the legs and hips.

The injured were cured for, and when another machine arrived on the scene were hurried to the hotel, where they were treated by physicians.

WOMAN ACCOMPLICE DIES.

Widow Who Aided in Death of Husband's Sinner Passes Away.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Mand Creffield, held in the King County jail as an accomplice in the murder of George Mitchell in the Union Station, on July 12, died suddenly in her cell last night.

Esther Mitchell, who shot her brother, was in the same bed with Mrs. Creffield when the latter was stricken.

Deputy Coroner S. F. Wills believes the woman died from heart failure.

Maud Hurl Creffield was the wife of "Joshua" Creffield, who was shot by George Mitchell, in the case of Creffield had maltreated his sister. Esther later shot her brother George. She and Mrs. Creffield were arrested for the crime, both women confessing that they had done it to avenge the death of "Joshua."

GETS WASHINGTON'S HAIR.

Valley Forge Memorial Chapel to Have an Odd Exhibit.

Norristown, Pa., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Margaret Pechin, of Philadelphia, has given to the Washington Memorial Chapel, at Valley Forge, a lock of George Washington's hair.

This precious relic was given to Mrs. Pechin in 1852 by James A. Hamilton, then eighty-four years old, and is inscribed in his own handwriting below the wax which holds the lock: "Washington's hair. Presented to Mrs. Pechin by James A. Hamilton, July 23, 1852."

He had received it from his father, Alexander Hamilton, Hamilton was one of Washington's aid-de-camp, and became a member of the Cabinet when the new government was established.

GEM NOT PART OF CHICKEN.

Ranchman Recovers Diamond That Was Found in Fowl's Claw.

Sterling City, Tex., Nov. 12.—Judge J. S. Patterson, of the District Court, has rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiff in the celebrated diamond case of C. H. Kendall against Mrs. E. F. Holcomb.

Seven years ago Kendall, a ranchman, lost a $300 diamond out of a ring while rounding up cattle. Mrs. Holcomb, about a year ago, found a diamond in a chicken's claw. Kendall sued for it, and the County Court decided in his favor. Mrs. Holcomb appealed to the District Court, where she again lost.

ROBBERS RETURNS MONEY.

After Relieving Victim, Retains Only One Dollar.

William Dixon, of 1010 C street southeast, out of what he termed a sense of duty rather than any desire to prosecute, reported at No. 2 precinct to-night that he had been held up in front of the alley on K street, between Sixth and Seventh, and robbed of one dollar. He said that he was walking to the alley when a man jumped out in front of him brandishing a club and demanded his money. Dixon handed the fellow $40 in bills. The stranger looked at the roll, then peeling off a $1 bill, handed the remaining $39 back to Dixon.

In explanation of his action he said that he had been looking for work for more than a week in Washington and that although he was a man of education and proficient in three languages, he had been unable to secure it. Dixon, glad that he had not been deprived of his entire roll, gave the man an extra dollar.

THE DOGWOOD.

I think I need more than all For what I do for Life: I ease in Spring and live till Fall, Without one thought of strife, Save clinging robes to please my friends, But suit myself as well, But after all my beauty bends, From hope to be the belle, My white bloom in the early Spring Gives joy to young and old, My green gown worn on Summer wing, And crown me as their queen, Then why I ask attention now, Behold my radiant beam!

SCORE MRS. PARSONS

Bishop Satterlee and Others Condemn Marriage Ideas.

MINISTERS TO OPPOSE IT.

Mrs. Mussey Declares that Unions Would Lower Instead of Raise the Standard of Morality—Believes Men Should Be as Moral as Women. What Others Think of Question.

"Such an arrangement would mean the absolute unmaking of marriage relations, and would result in the degradation of all women." This was all that Rev. Dr. Henry V. Satterlee, Bishop of the Archdiocese of Washington, would say last night when asked for an interview on the advocacy of experimental weddings by Mrs. Elsie Clevins Parsons, in her book, "The Family."

Extracts were presented in The Washington Herald yesterday and aroused storms of comment and criticism.

Mrs. Parsons arrived in Washington last night, and is at her home, 1229 Nineteenth street northwest. She declined to be interviewed.

Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey expressed herself as violently opposed to such weddings as proposed by Mrs. Parsons.

"Such a probationary system would undoubtedly be taken advantage of and lower instead of raise the standard of morality of the civilized world," she said yesterday. Mrs. Mussey agrees with Mrs. Parsons on a number of points, but, as she states, violently disagrees with the suggestion as a whole.

"As to the permanency of the marriage relation, I am opposed to anything that would militate against it. It should be enhanced. It has always been my opinion that no union should be experimental. For this reason I am opposed to hasty marriages. They should be prevented. Divorce statistics show that they are, in a majority of instances, due to this cause. I think that it should be required by law that couples contemplating marriage post notice several months before the license should be granted."

Mrs. Mussey agrees with Mrs. Parsons that immorality is on the increase, "not in all cases, but generally." She would not discuss the cause, merely confining herself to an exception as to the cure. "Divorce is increasing."

"I also believe with Mrs. Parsons that divorce is increasing, but the legal causes for divorce do not tend to multiply. "It is probably true that women are the chief applicants for divorce. There is good reason for this, in that woman is the chief sufferer through an unhappy marriage, as she is usually subordinate to her husband."

"I heartily agree that public sentiment should tend to condemn immorality in men, as in women, and think that the same standard should prevail with both. Women demand greater morality among men. I believe they would get it."

Mrs. Mussey does not believe in the absolute prohibition of remarriage among divorced persons, but thinks that they should not be married for a certain length of time.

Mrs. Mussey has written treatises on the subject, and she is now contemplating writing with reference to Mrs. Parsons' book.

Rev. Peters' Views.

The Rev. Madison C. Peters, of New York, declared that he quite agreed with Mrs. Parsons that divorced people should be allowed to remarry without criticism. That the church no more rules the world, and they are practically doing this in the United States to-day—and the pulpit should give the matter serious consideration.

"I have two daughters growing up into young womanhood, and when the time comes for them to think of marriage I would urge them to be in no haste, but to deliberately choose their life partner, not momentary passion, but for solid worth and character."

"But I would not ask them to live with a man who proved unworthy. I would tell them to cast such a man off, and if they found the man whom they believed worthy of them, to try again. This is not the church idea, but church ideas no longer rule the world."

Morgan Dix Denounces View.

The Rev. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity parish, New York, is strong in his denunciation of the book, and will this morning preach a sermon in Trinity Church, "in which I shall take up the matter and do my utmost to counteract the influence which is spreading such disgraceful theories."

"The idea of men and women living like animals, separating at will and contracting new alliances, leaving the children to be nobody's children, and to be cared for by the State, is barbarism."

"The proposition to abolish the clause in the divorce law prohibiting the remarriage of divorced couples is almost as reprehensible."

"I consider Mrs. Parsons' theories outrageous, and will attack them at length and with all the force in me."

Bishop of Albany's Idea.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The Rt. Rev. William Croswell Doan, Episcopal Bishop of Albany, who for years has been laboring for uniform divorce laws in all of the States, had this to say to-night regarding Mrs. Herbert Parsons' book:

"This is the most revolutionary and indecent performance of anything I have ever heard. I cannot understand why a woman in her position expresses such ideas. It is too bad to be true."

CABLE SHIP IS BATTERED.

The Burnside Arrives at Sitka with Her Deck Beams Open.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 12.—The United States cable ship Burnside, Capt. Henry W. Stamford, arrived at Sitka yesterday, with her deck seams opened, after encountering very rough weather. The damage to the vessel is considerable, but it is not believed at the local office of the Signal Corps that the work on the cable laying will be delayed longer than a few days.

During the trip the vessel was entirely submerged at Sitka. Firemen tried to extinguish the water. Firemen tried to extinguish the water. Firemen tried to extinguish the water.

Discharged Employees Make Trouble. Bristol, Tenn., Nov. 12.—As a result of the discharge of two men by the foreman of the Laurel River Lumber Company, near Abingdon, Va., John Marley was fatally shot to-day and James Anderson seriously wounded. One of the discharged men started the disturbance.

Land Fraud Indictments Dismissed. Helena, Mont., Nov. 12.—United States Judge Hunt to-day dismissed more than 100 indictments returned against residents of this city on a charge of perjury and subornation in connection with what is known as Western Montana land frauds.

BOMB HURLED IN TENEMENT.

Dead Followed Italian's Refusal to Pay Money to Black Hand.

New York, Nov. 12.—After sending letters demanding money from Pietro Realmutto, a storekeeper at 33 Stanton street, under threats of killing his children, girls three and four years old, agents of the Black Hand early to-day hurled a dynamite bomb at the store. Hundreds of residents in Stanton street were awakened by the explosion of the bomb, which landed in the hallway of 33 Stanton street, a tenement in which eighteen families live.

It blew the door off its hinges and broke "One" every window pane in the house, besides smashing a good many of the glass window panes next door. The police say that the bomb was thrown by a member of the Black Hand, standing on the opposite side of the street, who intended it to lodge in the entrance of Realmutto's store, but by bad aim threw it wide of the mark and sent it into the hallway of the house.

Realmutto recently as two days ago Realmutto received a letter signed by the Black Hand, saying that unless he let them have money they would kill his two children—Michela and Maria.

None was hurt by the explosion, with the exception of Bernard Citron, who was cut by a piece of glass.

About a year ago a similar explosion occurred in the same neighborhood, at 13 Stanton street, and although no street was ever made in connection with it, the police were sure it was the work of the Black Hand gang.

WED, THEN OCEAN PARTS THEM

Bride Starts for England, While the Husband Goes to Mexico.

New York, Nov. 12.—After a honeymoon lasting only thirty-six hours, Charles Simmons sailed to-day for Mexico, while his bride took a steamer for London.

Mr. Simmons, who holds a responsible position with the Ward Line, was spending a vacation in Mexico a few months ago and attended a circus.

One of the performers was a beautiful English girl, to whom he sought an introduction immediately after the performance was concluded. She was Miss Doris Barry, trapezist.

Within twenty-four hours Simmons proposed and was accepted. He accompanied his fiancée to this city, and arranged for her attendance at a finishing school for girls. She is nineteen, and came to this country a year ago from her home in Ipswich, England.

Word came a few days ago that her mother was seriously ill in Ipswich, and that she must hurry to England. Mr. Simmons was compelled to sail for Mexico to-day, and decided to get married at once.

BRIDE SUBJECT OF GOSSIP.

Upton Residents Question Statement that Ancestors Were Indians.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Upton, Mass., Nov. 12.—Residents of this small little burg are discussing the homecoming of Daniel Winthrop Whitney, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens, with his bride from Southernland, Va.

Mr. Whitney, who is nearly eighty years old, wedded Miss Mary E. Barsedal, of Southernland, Va., a few weeks ago in Washington, D. C., and has just returned with her from their honeymoon. She is twenty-eight years old, and the daughter of Claiborne and Ruth Barsedal, of Southernland.

She has given out the statement that her ancestors were American Indians, and her appearance would tend to indicate this, but a persistent rumor has arisen, which Whitney at his bride's wedding, that there is more African than Indian blood in her veins. She and Whitney first met at her home about four years ago.

AGED HUSBAND SUES BROKER.

Alleges Alienation of Wife's Affections and Demands $10,000.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—Declaring in his affidavit, filed yesterday, that Mark W. Marsden has broken up his home and wrecked his health as a consequence, Amos Edwards, seventy-one years old, has brought suit for $10,000 damages. Edwards lives at 189 North Eleventh street, and is a middle-aged inventor, stock broker, and promoter, lives at Old York road and Fisher's lane.

Edwards obtained a capias yesterday for the arrest of Marsden. When he entered the suit Judge Audenried, upon the application of George Bradford Carr, an attorney, required Marsden to enter $500 bail.

Mrs. Edwards is thirty years her husband's junior, and until last July lived with him at 323 North Thirteenth street. They were married in September, 1883, and, according to the aged husband's complaint, his wife was companionable and contented until she met Marsden. Then, declares her treatment toward him changed. She became abusive and repeatedly begged him to divorce her. He said that several months ago she went to Marsden's home, from which she wrote him: "I am now with people who love me, and that I love." Marsden, he said, continually gave Mrs. Edwards presents of perfume and candies.
